

PAOLO FERRI

Head, Mission Operations Department at European Space Operations Centre, European Space Agency

Paolo Ferri is Head of ESA Mission Operations Department in the Directorate of Human Spaceflight and Operations. As such he is responsible for the mission operations preparation and execution for all ESA unmanned missions.

Following his studies in Theoretical Physics at the Università di Pavia, in 1984 he joined the European Space Agency as visiting scientist in support of the Exosat X-ray astronomy mission. He then moved to mission operations and worked on a variety of missions, from low Earth orbiters to interplanetary.

He started working on the preparation of the Rosetta mission as Spacecraft Operations Manager in 1996. He then became Head of the Solar and Planetary Mission Operations Division. At the same time he was Rosetta Flight Director until 2013.
